Head "A Voice in My Head" is a song by American alternative rock musician Kurt Cobain, released as the third and final single from his first solo album, Bleach. Recording and composition Written by Cobain, "A Voice in My Head" was recorded at David Hykes' Fishbone Avenue Studios in Seattle in December 1991. It was produced by John Goodhines and recorded as the final track to the album.

The song begins with Cobain singing about a woman named Maggie who he wants to have a one-night stand with. The lyrics then move into a metaphor for the voice in Cobain's head, which warns him to "make the best decision now / Don't wait to think too long." Music video The music video for "A Voice in "My Head" was directed by Anton Corbijn and was filmed on December 27, 1991 in New York City. The video was a departure from the typical Cobain music videos of the time, which usually featured documentary footage of him recording and performing with his band. The black-and-white video features Cobain sitting at a desk reading a letter from an unknown woman. He then gets up and is seen writing a letter to the woman, though he does not send the letter. Instead, he walks to a parking garage, walks up the stairs, and walks through an alleyway to a building across from the garage. He opens a window on the floor of the building to reveal a lesbian couple kissing. Cobain climbs up to the second floor of the building, and a man who appears to be a police officer follows him. Cobain has his arms raised and is seen dropping into the couple's bed. The woman and the man are both seen wearing black hats and masks. Cobain spends the remainder of the video on top of the couple. Allmusic critic Stephen Thomas Erlewine wrote that the video "imagined [Cobain's] return to a home in which he was safe and instead saw him
