Fibroblast growth factor-2 (FGF-2) is a powerful mitogen for many cell types, including cell types that are naturally devoid of FGF receptors. FGF-2 accomplishes its effects on these cells by binding to heparan sulfate proteoglycans (HSPG) on the cell surface. U.S. Pat. No. 6,166,172, incorporated herein by reference, describes amino acid changes that have been shown to reduce or eliminate receptor binding of FGF-2. There is a significant body of art describing peptides that bind to FGF receptor and modulate the activity of FGF. WO 98/54183 describes peptides that bind to the FGFR4 receptor, that inhibits FGF-2 activity. WO 99/15500 describes peptides that bind to FGF receptor and modulate FGF-2 activity. U.S. Pat. No. 5,939,560 describes the use of FGF-2 variants to treat cardiac infarction. U.S. Pat. No. 5,849,840 describes the use of FGF-2 variants to treat heart failure. U.S. Pat. No. 6,130,143 describes the use of FGF-2 variants to treat lung diseases. WO98/54183 and WO 99/15500 disclose peptides against FGFR4, and WO 99/15500 discloses peptides against FGFR3. WO 00/35925 and WO 00/35876 describe the use of FGF antagonists for the treatment of conditions wherein cell proliferation and fibrosis are implicated. WO 00/09202 describes various FGF antagonists for treating a wide variety of proliferative diseases. There is a need for methods of treatment for diseases involving abnormal cell proliferation and fibrosis.

What We Wore Thursday – 3/17/15 I wanted to share this pic from a recent trip. We took a “date night” trip to Seattle... and it was my first time seeing Puget Sound. It was beautiful, absolutely breathtaking... and I’ll have to go back one day to truly experience it. We had a fun time eating dinner and chatting with friends and family. (Me just taking a pic of Michael.... and a bow tie on my husband...) I just recently finished watching Sex and the City 2 and I have to say – Charlotte was my new favorite! What I like about her

1. Field of the Invention The invention is related to the field of landing gear landing systems, and more particularly to landing gear landing systems capable of landing on either a paved or a non-paved surface. 2. Description of the Prior Art Certain aircraft and helicopters include landing gear capable of landing on either a paved surface or a non-paved surface. For example, the Boeing 777 and Boeing 767 aircraft are capable of landing on a paved surface or a non-paved surface. The landing gear of the Boeing 777 includes struts and brakes. These struts and brakes require power.

The landing gear of the Boeing 767 includes struts, brakes and spoilers. These struts, brakes and spoilers also require power. The landing gear landing system on aircraft such as the Boeing 777 and Boeing 767 include actuators such as a cylinder that provides power to the landing gear in order to lower the landing gear to the pavement or to deploy the landing gear in an upward position. The actuator is connected to a gear lock mechanism. The gear lock mechanism is connected to the brake of the landing gear. The brake is connected to the strut of the landing gear. When the landing gear is lowered onto a pavement, the actuator provides the power to the landing gear so that the strut lowers. When the landing gear has been lowered to the pavement, the brake is engaged, thereby braking the landing gear strut. This connection may also be referred to as a lock up the strut. Then, the actuator provides power to the strut so that the strut is being raised, thereby lifting the landing gear, and the strut. The brake continues to be engaged until the tire contacts the pavement. At this point, the brake is released, and the landing gear, and struts remain in the lifted state. The landing gear landing system on certain aircraft such as the Boeing 767 also includes a spoiler. The spoilers are used to cushion the tire of the landing gear against the pavement. However, if there is an obstacle such as a wire or an electric box, the landing gear will come in contact with this obstacle, which may cause damage to the strut and brake of the landing gear.

Accordingly, there is a need to protect the strut and brake of the landing gear, when the landing gear is lowered onto a pavement, from any obstacle.

Additionally, there is a need to prevent contact between the landing gear and obstacles, to avoid damage to the strut and brake. Mobile communications are widely deployed to provide
