Archive for February 11th, 2012 By Mike Drost Want to know how many new applications are submitted to the world each day? The number would be unimaginable. In addition to thousands of new PUs on file, an equally mind-boggling number of applications are created, most of which never get the attention they deserve. I would like to humbly submit that you should take a few moments and make use of the wonderful and free application submitted to you. Walking App Built by the JFLWiki Project, The Walking App is a brilliant Android app which lets you define a specific walk, and then shares your progress as you make the walk. You have a map with markers showing your current position. You add more steps by either double tapping your current location or by dragging the mark from the map to the specific location in the map. Use it if you' 6d1f23a050
